grave he contemptuously kicked on foot against a small block of stone, lying in the autumn rubbish, saying "That's Wirt." The grave has close to another and apparently not on a line with it, but as if intended to be made a few feet below the line. A small triangular stone, about four inches wide and a little longer on the face, bears simply the rudely cut name—Wirt. The keeper of the Andersonville penitentiary is a neglected and despised grave.

THE SURRATT HOUSE. On H street, between Sixth and Seventh, stands the Surratt house, where Mr. Surratt and all its inmates were arrested at 11 o'clock on the night of the 17th of April, 1865, and taken before the Provost-Marshal. The house was kept as a boarding-house by Mrs. Surratt, but was sold after her execution to pay her lawyer's fee; Reverdy Johnson defended her, as everyone knows. The Surratt family are living in Maryland; the daughter is married and resides in Baltimore.

Curiosity seeks out the old Arsenal grounds, but finds nothing left of the former associations. It also goes to Capitol Hill and seeks the old building where Wirt was tried and executed, but finds only new, bright homes, radiant in the warm, bright sunshine. A few years and all relics and traces of the rebellion will be no more in Washington—only such a government chooses to retain as historic relics or war records.—Washington Letter to the San Francisco Chronicle.

Better than She Expected. "My letter received. In reply I am happy to say that Parker's Hair Balsam did much more for me than I expected, and it would not stop falling out, but the bald spots are all covered, and all my hair has grown thicker, softer and more lively than it was before my sickness a year ago. Thank you again and again." Extract from letters of Mr. R. W. T., test Fifty-third street, New York.

Perils of Education. The perils of education are alarming. I mean education without moral and industrial training. Teachers and professors have but little to do with this. Their sole business is to teach from the books. If the pupil stands well in mathematics in Greek and Latin and logic and rhetoric and philosophy, he is doing splendidly. That is the long and short of it. In fact, it is the long and short of it, and almost everything with the parents. The result is that thousands of boys are being educated as experts in indolence, in avoiding work, and in many cases they resort to forgery and embezzlement and obtaining money under false pretenses. It is an open secret at the North that education increases crime, not just a little but immensely. As literacy increases crime increases in a geometrical ratio. They are almost met with the starting question which is the best, comparative ignorance with honesty or high culture with dishonesty?—Bill App in Atlanta Constitution.

A very large proportion of our exchanges agree that immigration is an evil that threatens the peace and prosperity of the country, but many of them do not see their way clear to suggesting a remedy. They think that immigration ought to be checked, but they do not see how to do it. However, the way to check immigration is to resume the way to resume to resume. The way to check immigration is to check it, and the simplest plan to that end will be the best. Put a head tax of $20, or more if necessary, on each immigrant, and the flood will be stopped. If at any time we need more immigrants, the tax can easily be reduced. But the tax should be made high enough in the first instance to make sure of accomplishing the end in view.

Useful and Suggestive. Peach leaves pounded to a pulp and applied to a bruise or wound from a rusty nail or a simple cut will give immediate relief.

The largest possible increase at the least cost should be the rule, and upon this depends the turning point between profit and loss in farming.—National View.

When you wash your trees use a cloth. On old ones a stiff scrub-brush is better, as it will dislodge insects that have taken up quarters beneath the scales of bark.

There is no doubt but that hardwood floors should be used in creameries when stone flagging, carefully cemented, can not be had. Thoroughly seasoned maple is one of the best.

Never wear better if brushed with a hat brush by pressing down into the nap then turning the brush as on an axis to flout out the nap. Do not brush backward or forward.—Indiana Journal.

Never put milk, fat or any oily substance into the ear for the relief of pain for the pain becomes rancid and tend to infect inflammation. Simple warm water will answer the purpose better than any thing else.

A "scrub" is an animal that is poorly kept and badly neglected; most beasts by liberal feeding and shelter without negligence, can be converted into "blue-bloods," or at least into animals as good as "blue-bloods."—Farm Journal.

Steamed Oatmeal: Half-pint oatmeal, one teaspoonful of salt; put in two-quart basin and pour over it one quart of boiling water; put in a steamer and steam two hours. Do not remove the cover during that time—Boston Budget.

Indiana Breakfast Cake: Two cups of sour milk, a teaspoonful of soda, two tablespoonfuls of sugar or molasses, a little salt, an even cup of flour, and meal enough to make a not too sticky batter. Bake fifteen minutes in a quick oven.—Farm, Field and Stockmen.

In Wisconsin, fourteen sheep contained out of sixty three, all show a variation in farming lands eighty percent above the other parts of the State. These figures show the tendency of sheep husbandry to improve farming lands, and consequently enhance their market value.
